

Jim Barksdale once said, “Nothing happens until somebody sells something,” and that’s the truth. What’s also true is that unless you can craft a clear, concise, and compelling written message, you’re going to have a tough time selling anything to anybody. And it’s all sales, folks. From that first college application essay to the query letter for a job interview to pitching a client for their account. If you can’t make your case clearly – and quickly – you lose to the person who can. It’s that simple. So don’t lose. Win. Pick up a copy of Write to Influence! Not only is Bass charming and entertaining, the tips and writing strategies she provides are brilliant. Today, more than ever, standout writing means the difference between success and failure. Succeed with Write to Influence! Review by Susan McCorkindale, Editor, SHE! Magazine